

They're honest with each other	Neither person has financial control over the other	They celebrate each other's successes	They talk about preventing STDs	They get along with each other's friends/family
There is no physical violence	They're comfortable around each other	They only have sex when they both want to	No one intimidates or threatens the other	They respect each other's differences
They talk when either person is upset	They're ok with disagreements - they listen to and respect "no"	FREE	No one pressures the other to do anything	They don't put each other down - to each other or to others
They each have some of their own friends	They talk about preventing pregnancy	They enjoy spending time together	They don't look through the other's phone without permission	They give each other space to do things on their own
They don't control what the other one does	No one stalks or tracks the other's movements	They openly communicate their feelings	They're supportive of each other's interests	They are proud to be around one another

They're ok with disagreements - they listen to and respect "no"	No one intimidates or threatens the other	They talk about preventing STDs	There is no physical violence	They only have sex when they both want to
They celebrate each other's successes	They're supportive of each other's interests	They get along with each other's friends/family	No one stalks or tracks the other's movements	They respect each other's differences
They each have some of their own friends	No one pressures the other to do anything	FREE	They don't put each other down - to each other or to others	Neither person has financial control over the other
They don't look through the other's phone without permission	They openly communicate their feelings	They're honest with each other	They are proud to be around one another	They talk about preventing pregnancy
They enjoy spending time together	They give each other space to do things on their own	They talk when either person is upset	They're comfortable around each other	They don't control what the other one does

No one stalks or tracks the other's movements	They openly communicate their feelings	No one intimidates or threatens the other	They give each other space to do things on their own	No one pressures the other to do anything
They're honest with each other	They each have some of their own friends	They enjoy spending time together	They're comfortable around each other	They get along with each other's friends/family
They talk when either person is upset	They are proud to be around one another	FREE	They talk about preventing pregnancy	They don't look through the other's phone without permission
They're ok with disagreements - they listen to and respect "no"	They respect each other's differences	They talk about preventing STDs	They're supportive of each other's interests	They celebrate each other's successes
They don't put each other down - to each other or to others	Neither person has financial control over the other	They only have sex when they both want to	There is no physical violence	They don't control what the other one does