

B	I	N	G	O
The right to use of the telephone	The right to 30 calendar days written notice of changes in services provided by the facility	The right to designate the individuals to be notified in cases of emergency or involuntary discharge	The right to private telephone calls or use of electronic communication	The right to live free from financial exploitation restraint and involuntary confinement (except in a secure environment)
The right to be treated with dignity and respect	The right to socialize with other residents and participate in activities	The right to participate in activities outside of the facility and assistance with transportation	The right to be free from neglect	The right to private consensual sexual activity
The right to refuse to perform tasks requested by the facility in exchange for room & board	The right to vote	FREE SPACE	The right to be free from sexual verbal physical or emotional abuse	The right to have advocates whose purposes include rendering assistance to the residents
The right to be informed and participate in decision making regarding care and services	The right to have private communications with any person of choice	The right to receive mail unopened	The right to have visitors at any time	The right to receive services in accordance with the resident agreement and the care plan
The right to expect cooperation in achieving the maximum degree of benefit from services made available	The right to make decisions in managing personal affairs funds and property in accordance with resident ability	The right to exercise choice in attending and participating in religious activities	The right to be informed about and formulate advance directives	The right to participate in resident meetings voice grievances and recommend changes without fear of reprisal

B	I	N	G	O
The right to vote	The right to receive mail unopened	The right to private consensual sexual activity	The right to participate in resident meetings voice grievances and recommend changes without fear of reprisal	The right to receive services in accordance with the resident agreement and the care plan
The right to be free from sexual verbal physical or emotional abuse	The right to be informed and participate in decision making regarding care and services	The right to live free from financial exploitation restraint and involuntary confinement (except in a secure environment)	The right to be treated with dignity and respect	The right to make decisions in managing personal affairs funds and property in accordance with resident ability
The right to be free from neglect	The right to full use of the facility common areas	FREE SPACE	The right to 30 calendar days written notice of changes in services provided by the facility	The right to have visitors at any time
The right to use of the telephone	The right to be informed about and formulate advance directives	The right to wear clothing of choice unless otherwise indicated in the care plan	The right to private telephone calls or use of electronic communication	The right to participate in activities outside of the facility and assistance with transportation
The right to designate the individuals to be notified in cases of emergency or involuntary discharge	The right to have advocates whose purposes include rendering assistance to the residents	The right to have private communications with any person of choice	The right to expect cooperation in achieving the maximum degree of benefit from services made available	The right to socialize with other residents and participate in activities

B	I	N	G	O
The right to be treated with dignity and respect	The right to receive services in accordance with the resident agreement and the care plan	The right to have private communications with any person of choice	The right to private telephone calls or use of electronic communication	The right to 30 calendar days written notice of changes in services provided by the facility
The right to vote	The right to private consensual sexual activity	The right to designate the individuals to be notified in cases of emergency or involuntary discharge	The right to be informed and participate in decision making regarding care and services	The right to make decisions in managing personal affairs funds and property in accordance with resident ability
The right to have advocates whose purposes include rendering assistance to the residents	The right to full use of the facility common areas	FREE SPACE	The right to be free from sexual verbal physical or emotional abuse	The right to be free from neglect
The right to be informed about and formulate advance directives	The right to refuse to perform tasks requested by the facility in exchange for room & board	The right to live free from financial exploitation restraint and involuntary confinement (except in a secure environment)	The right to exercise choice in attending and participating in religious activities	The right to participate in resident meetings voice grievances and recommend changes without fear of reprisal
The right to socialize with other residents and participate in activities	The right to use of the telephone	The right to have visitors at any time	The right to expect cooperation in achieving the maximum degree of benefit from services made available	The right to care and services not limited because of disability sexual orientation ethnicity and/or personal preference