

B	I	N	G	O
Someone who values expressing personal opinions	Someone who apologizes often even for small things	Someone who feels uncomfortable with long silences	Someone who silently judges certain behaviors as "rude"	Someone who plans their day very strictly
Someone who changes how they speak to older people	Someone who treats everyone the same regardless of age	Someone who prefers very direct answers	Someone who avoids public disagreement	Someone who thinks being late is sometimes acceptable
Someone who values group harmony over personal opinion	Someone who avoids saying "no" directly	Someone who has misunderstood others because of cultural differences	Someone who has realized their "normal" is not universal	Someone who speaks up freely in group discussions
Someone who often wears traditional or culturally specific clothing	Someone who rarely says "sorry" unless it is serious	Someone who finds interrupting rude	Someone who prefers flexible schedules	Someone who believes being on time shows respect
Someone who softens criticism to avoid hurting feelings	Someone who feels stressed when plans change suddenly	Someone who waits to be invited before speaking	Someone who feels uncomfortable when rules are broken	Someone who has changed their behavior in a new culture

B	I	N	G	O
Someone who values group harmony over personal opinion	Someone who avoids saying "no" directly	Someone who thinks being late is sometimes acceptable	Someone who avoids public disagreement	Someone who believes being on time shows respect
Someone who feels uncomfortable when rules are broken	Someone who speaks up freely in group discussions	Someone who has misunderstood others because of cultural differences	Someone who plans their day very strictly	Someone who rarely says "sorry" unless it is serious
Someone who changes how they speak to older people	Someone who feels uncomfortable with long silences	Someone who prefers very direct answers	Someone who prefers flexible schedules	Someone who values expressing personal opinions
Someone who often wears traditional or culturally specific clothing	Someone who feels stressed when plans change suddenly	Someone who treats everyone the same regardless of age	Someone who finds interrupting rude	Someone who silently judges certain behaviors as "rude"
Someone who softens criticism to avoid hurting feelings	Someone who waits to be invited before speaking	Someone who has changed their behavior in a new culture	Someone who apologizes often even for small things	Someone who has realized their "normal" is not universal

B	I	N	G	O
Someone who speaks up freely in group discussions	Someone who prefers flexible schedules	Someone who feels stressed when plans change suddenly	Someone who feels uncomfortable when rules are broken	Someone who finds interrupting rude
Someone who believes being on time shows respect	Someone who has changed their behavior in a new culture	Someone who changes how they speak to older people	Someone who has misunderstood others because of cultural differences	Someone who values expressing personal opinions
Someone who often wears traditional or culturally specific clothing	Someone who softens criticism to avoid hurting feelings	Someone who prefers very direct answers	Someone who avoids saying "no" directly	Someone who treats everyone the same regardless of age
Someone who values group harmony over personal opinion	Someone who rarely says "sorry" unless it is serious	Someone who waits to be invited before speaking	Someone who avoids public disagreement	Someone who apologizes often even for small things
Someone who has realized their "normal" is not universal	Someone who thinks being late is sometimes acceptable	Someone who silently judges certain behaviors as "rude"	Someone who feels uncomfortable with long silences	Someone who plans their day very strictly