* "I've been doing therapy exercises" (clearly untouched handout)	* Dog barks the entire visit	* Oxygen tubing tangled beyond explanation	* The recliner becomes the official assessment station	* Patient weighs themselves with shoes jacket and purse on
* Getting lost in a neighborhood with identical houses	* "I'm feeling fine today" after reporting every symptom imaginable	* Signature takes longer than the entire visit	* Family member answers every question for the patient	* "I forgot my glasses" during paperwork review
* "No medication changes" ... followed by 5 new bottles on the counter	* Family member appears halfway through with "I have a few questions..."	OFF LOADED	* Patient says "I'm not home" while clearly answering from home	* Patient says "My doctor never told me that"
* Wi-Fi/cell service disappears exactly when charting	* Patient starts telling their entire life story at the door	* Surprise cat jumps onto your paperwork	* Patient pulls out a completely different med list than what's in the chart	* Realizing your next patient is 35 minutes away with rush-hour traffic
* Finding the TV volume somehow set to maximum	* Trying to explain Medicare coverage for the 47th time	* Hunting for the blood pressure cuff for 10 minutes	Can you come after 6 PM?"	* Offered food you politely can't refuse
