

UCSB Women in IT Who...

I would like to learn more about how UC culture and technology can assist in data sharing.	I am a devoted fan of synchronized skating and am eagerly awaiting the day when this becomes an Olympic sport.	I am able to teach someone how to plan measure and adjust the process of project development.	I would like to learn Shibboleth/SSO	I have read every Pulitzer prize winner fiction book going back to 1918.
I am able to teach someone WordPress	I would like to learn more about database Management MS SSIS SSRS SSAS and C# Business Intelligence	I love to cook	I am able to teach someone Accounts Payable and FlexCard	I would like to learn how to become more assertive in a male dominated profession
I'm a librarian!	I am able to teach someone HTML	I am an Agile Coach	I have lived in 3 countries throughout my life the last being the US	I would like to learn cyber security
I have lived in Nigeria Berlin Japan and England	I would like to learn Project Management	I am able to teach someone how to use a ticketing system	I have worked in IT for 25 years and UCSB is the first place that I have had a woman supervisor.	I am able to teach someone Unix server management
I would like to learn about e-signatures through DocuSign	I am able to teach someone how to decipher whether an email is a phishing attempt or has malicious content embedded	Last Spring Break I did a 50 mile backpacking trip across Catalina with my son's Boy Scout Troop	I am able to teach someone how to do cool stuff in ServiceNow	I am able to teach web design and development processes
