

B	I	N	G	O
"What if you wrote this in second person?"	Another essay about a grandparent's funeral.	Essay about a grandparent's funeral.	White guy explains the implausibilities in a medical story because his "dad is a doctor."	Suggestion that two platonic characters become romantic.
Confusion over formatting.	"I really felt like I was there."	Tangent about anime.	Author goes to bathroom for twenty minutes after their writing is discussed.	Use of "sentimental" as a compliment.
"I don't know if this was just me..."	"You don't have to listen to anything I'm about to say..."	Free Space SNAPS	Awkward use of literary term that'll be on the vocab quiz.	Praise for use of different colored fonts.
Someone reminds us we're all going to die.	"I could relate to this because I also love my mom."	Story that's preposterously superior to everyone else's.	Palpable tension.	Suggestion to add a title.
Love poem that seems like it's about a person but turns out to be about a dog.	Comparison of a baseball story to The Sandlot.	Three comments in a row that make the exact same point.	"You wrote star when I think you meant stare."	Discussion of how the typo 'star' is actually cooler than 'stare.'

B	I	N	G	O
"You don't have to listen to anything I'm about to say..."	Author goes to bathroom for twenty minutes after their writing is discussed.	White guy explains the implausibilities in a medical story because his "dad is a doctor."	Confusion over formatting.	Tangent about anime.
Essay about a grandparent's funeral.	"You wrote star when I think you meant stare."	Suggestion that two platonic characters become romantic.	Comparison of a baseball story to The Sandlot.	Use of "sentimental" as a compliment.
Someone reminds us we're all going to die.	Awkward use of literary term that'll be on the vocab quiz.	Free Space SNAPS	Praise for use of different colored fonts.	Another essay about a grandparent's funeral.
Palpable tension.	Three comments in a row that make the exact same point.	"What if you wrote this in second person?"	Discussion of how the typo 'star' is actually cooler than 'stare.'	"I could relate to this because I also love my mom."
Story that's preposterously superior to everyone else's.	Suggestion to add a title.	"I don't know if this was just me..."	"I really felt like I was there."	Love poem that seems like it's about a person but turns out to be about a dog.

B	I	N	G	O
Comparison of a baseball story to The Sandlot.	Three comments in a row that make the exact same point.	Author goes to bathroom for twenty minutes after their writing is discussed.	Suggestion to add a title.	Awkward use of literary term that'll be on the vocab quiz.
"What if you wrote this in second person?"	Someone reminds us we're all going to die.	Story that's preposterously superior to everyone else's.	"I really felt like I was there."	Suggestion that two platonic characters become romantic.
"I don't know if this was just me..."	Discussion of how the typo 'star' is actually cooler than 'stare.'	Free Space SNAPS	"I could relate to this because I also love my mom."	Palpable tension.
"You don't have to listen to anything I'm about to say..."	Use of "sentimental" as a compliment.	White guy explains the implausibilities in a medical story because his "dad is a doctor."	"You wrote star when I think you meant stare."	Essay about a grandparent's funeral.
Praise for use of different colored fonts.	Another essay about a grandparent's funeral.	Tangent about anime.	Confusion over formatting.	Love poem that seems like it's about a person but turns out to be about a dog.